"Welcome to our Prince."—A pretty little song of this mane, full of loyal sentiments and kindly feeling, has just issued from the press, which (as a musical piece de cir-contence) will doubtless find a welcome at most of the many pianofortes in this city. It is published for the com-poser, Mrs. John Mitchell, who is also the authoress of the words—addressed to our long expected Salior Prince the Duke of Edinburgh. The air is a lively one, such as may be easily learned, and the accompaniment is simple, appro-priate, and pleasing.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 3, 1868.

THE chief item of interest in the news by the Panama mail relates to the tremendous hurricane which has desolated so many islands of the West Indies, and especially those of Tortola and St. Thomas. In another column will be found a letter written by a passenger who was an eye witness of most that he relates, and who has given a striking picture of one scene of this catastrophe. It will be observed that between seventy and eighty vessels were torn from their anchorage, and either seriously damaged or totally destroyed. Every element seemed to combine in this work of destruction. The tornado raged with a force which hurled vast masses to great distances. Flying material pierced the roofs and walls of houses with the vehemence and effect of artillery. It seems almost incredible that a diving bell weighing nine tons could have been lifted and precipitated by the force of any storm. The violence of the tornado is, however, expressed by this incident; and we can easily see how impossible that any ordinary building materials in exposed situations should resist such force or preserve a shelter to the terrified inhabitants. Then there was an earthquake seemed to combine in this work of destruction such force or preserve a shelfer to the terrined inhabitants. Then there was an earthquake rocking to and fro the dwellings, moving the waters to their depths, heaving them up like walls "forty feet high" towards the devoted town, sweeping off everything in their course, and allowing escape to none but those whose circumstances made their preservation anyear, a mirral preservation appear a miracle.

It is difficult to form any conception of the terror and danger of such visitations repeated after an interval of weeks,—for the first hurricane swept over these islands in October, and the carthquake and its accompanying phenomena finished the fearful visitation on the 19th November. Our correspondent noticing the incidents of the 18th and 19th, tells us that the thick darkness concealed every object, that there were heard the cealed every object, that there were heard the cries of wailing and despair all around. The earth trembled every instent, and even the stoutest hearts, filled with terror, trembled too. stoutest hearts, filled with terror, trembled too. Each race and sex expressed a sense of danger according to its nature and habits. It was not to be supposed that the negroes would sit down in silence to meet their apparent fate, It was scarcely to be expected that they would work with much vigour in the face of present death. It was natural that they should utter in the loud cries of half-civilised people their sense of neril. It is however to be people their sense of peril. It is, however, to be admired when physical courage or religious resignation subdues the utterances of fear, and affords the contrast described by our traveller between the confusion, the noise, the darkness, the trembling of nature, and the submission and devotion of those who felt that they were power-less, but who, nevertheless, did not lose their trust in God.

clusion, much less to rely upon its scientific truth. It is probable we must look for the punishment of guilt and the vindication of right o other sources than tornadoes, and that the visitation of the innocent as well as the guilty are the consequences of laws upon the whole beneficial to the human race.

Such calamities place in rather a strong light the propriety of remodelling the route of our steamships recently determined upon. It might be once in a lifetime of here and there an individual, a compensation to be present at such scenes in order to witness the elemental way that treats man and all his works elemental war that treats man and all his works as a feather or as a handful of dust. But look g at the question in a more commercial way, and having regard to the permanent utility of such a line, the change was undoubtedly imperative. The alternative of yellow fever or earthquakes can scarcely be exhibited as a choice. It is possible to reach Europe across the Pacific Ocean without touching upon any climate poisoned by pestilence, or being long in any latitude where these wonderful convulsions occur. The increase of European population on all the great lines of European population on all the great lines of intercourse will, however, soon secure a perfect knowledge of the probable contingencies of every route. Great calamities are commonly the means of directing attention to whatever may improve or reform, and the story of the visitation at St. Thomas could not be without its reffect on those who have to provide for the movement of commerce and the course of travel. Much suffering and distress must have resulted from this storm, but, doubtless, that charty which is native to no country or nation, but visits all in days of distress, and moves as an arread of mercy cay, all will obtain from those angel of mercy over all, will obtain from those who are nearest, and most responsible, the neans of ample relief.

REDUCTION IN THE PRICE OF NEWSPAPER's,—The European Times of November lat says:—Some weeks ago it was mentioned that the Daily News was about to be reduced to a ponny. The change is to take place from the commencement of next year, and is likely to be a heavy blow to the Star and Telegraph.

Extract from a letter from Mr. John Fairfax, to Mr. James R. Fairfax, dated Liverpool, England, August 31st, 1865:—

"The rage for cheap papers will naturally extend to the colonies, and in course of time we shall have to consider the propriety of reducing to twopence (2d)."

Mr. John Fairiax, dates System 1866:—

"With respect to reducing the Herald to 2d., we have time to think of that, but at the same time it is highly necessary to be prepared to issue a paper at that price. * * It seems to me that it would be advisable to inquire the price of the cheapest [printing] paper to be used in case of the desirability of a reduction."

ROYAL SYDNEY YACHT SQUADMON.—The monthly meeting of the above took place yesterday afternoon, when exercal new members were admitted, and a number of names proposed for election at the next halds needing. The race for third class yachts is to come off on Saturday, the lith; for second class on Saturday, the 1st February; and about second week in February for the first-class bosts. It is the intention of the commodore to offer a prize for a handleap race, to be competed for by yachts belonging to the squadran. All the beats will, if possible, proceed down the harbour upon the arrival of the Schman, to welcome our new Governor, who, it is stated, is an old yachtsman. The romainder of the afternoon was passed in disaussing courses, crews, sails, and the amount of prizes to be given for each race.

devotion of those who felt that they were power-less, but who, nevertheless, did not lose their trust in God.

The loss of life, though very considerable, is not so great as might be expected. Of course it is impossible to ascertain at present the number who have perished, but 600 fis set down as the probable sacrifice at St. Thomas. It must indeed have been a moment of awful excitement when nature, restored to its winted tranquility, tert the relat at lessuits to course between the earthquake and the storm had made. At such a time the discovery that life, so long imperilled, had been preserved, must have diffused joy and thankfulness before which all lesser evils would seem inconsiderable. But we may readily imagine that there were many to whom the disclosures of the light would, while terminating their suspense, only augment their grief, leaving for long years to come rreparable loss and inextinguishable sorrow. Such visitations are not unusual in the history of those islands. Fleets have been lost in the harbours of the West Indies, and some of the more appalling visitatiens are described in every work on nautical science. The origin of these islands, their peculiar climate, the latitudes in which they lie, the established law of storms which governs the atmosphere—all forbid the idea that tornadoes and earthquakes will not occur again and again.

They are often the deduction from the attraction of countries so rich and fertile that no amount of danger can deter from their habitation. They are perhaps the means by which the health is preserved in other climes. The poet Cowpers, indignant at the crimes committed against a subject race speaks of the tornado as an instrument of Divine vengeance—a punishment of the covetous-ness and cruelty of man; a vindication of the rights of the oppressed. We are not called to test the theological value of this common conclusion, much less to rely upon its scientific truth. It is probable we must look for the punishment of roult and the vindication of right.

fires have been observable in town in the direction of the Black Range, and, the grass being now as thy as finder from the late hot winds, we may expect to hear of some very serious losses. To-day the Game Act permits the sport-ment to resume their avocations, and we may, therefore, look forward to the ignition of grass through the means of discharged paper and ray wadding.—On Sunday marning last (asys the Newcastle Chronicle), about 10 clock, a large bush fire was observed at Bluff Head, on the North Shove, running towards. Stockton, the fire reaching the north end of what is known as the King William Read about cloven o'clock, and three reged for some time with terrific tury. The house of Mr. Vial and the workshop of Mr. A. Hay being in dangerous proximity to the bush, and a large quantity of dead wood lying about near at hand, it was deemed advisable to remove the same to prevent its leading the fire to the above-mentioned property. Directly the idea was mooted, all hands—non, women, and children—set to work, and it a short time it was all cleared away. Tubs and buckets filled with water were also placed in readiness, and the crew of the three-masted schooner Rubicon (all Chinese), were depatched to the scene with buckets in case they might be required. Fortunately, however, when the fire had reached within one hundred yards of the place it nearly died out for want of sufficient wind and brush. As seen from Nowcastle the conflagarition about one o'clock appeared a very lage one, and it was feared for a time that some of the residents would be compelled to vacate their houses.

St. Thomas and Tortola.—The island of St. Thomas lies about thirty-eight miles east of Porto Rico, in Inditude 18:20 North, and longitude 64:65 West. The greatest length east and from this cause suffers much from a deficiency of rain; nor is its soil ferille. The area under crop a few years also was less than 3000 acres, half of which were planted with sugar cane. The anchorage is extensive and generally very secure, the opening to sea ATTEMPT AT MURDER AT NEWCASTLE.—A little before twelve o'clock on Tuesday night, information was received in Newcastle that a murder had some short time previously been committed at the Borehole. From what information could be gleened, it would appear that a man of the name of W. Crangh, employed as a miner in the Borchole pit, had during the day been inhibiting freely in intoxicating drinks, and had some short time before dusk returned to his home, where an altereation areas between thinself and wife, when he mised his pick and deliberately struck the unfortunate woman on the head, inflicting a frightful wound. The police immediately, on being apprised of the murder, proceeded to the scene of the outrage. We are happy to state the woman, though frightfully cut about, was not killed on the spot, as reported. The first blow struck her in the small of the back, the next on her right hand, and the third on one of her arms. Both her arm and hand were completely perforated by the blow. Mrs. Craigh ultimately got out of her brutal husband's reach by falling through one of the slabs of the fut. Craigh under his escape, and has not yet been captured.—Chromole. The apprentices present numbered from 10,000 to 12,000. One hundred and twenty gold medals were distributed to the masters.

ENGLAND.—London, November 7, 1867.—Serious bread riots occurred in Exeter on the 4th instant. Every meat and bread shop in the city was sacked, and many buildings were set on fire by incendiaries. Great excitement prevailed for a time, and the local authorities had to petition the Government to send troops to quell the rioters. The troops came to the rescue and soon restored order. The Times says that should Napoleon fail in bringing about a general conference of the European Powers to settle the Roman question, he will abandon the defence of the temporal power of the Pope, and leave Italy free to decide upon the future position of Reme.

ITALY.—Florence, November 7, 1867.—On the 3rd instant, Garibaldi with 3500 men and two casnon left his camp near Monte Rotondo, and advanced to Tivoli, which was held by the Papal troops. He found the latter, to the number of 6000, posted in a strong position and supported by artillery. The Pontifical troops immediately opened fire with their batteries upon the approaching Garibaldians. A desperate conflict ensued, and the Garibaldians were about getting the better of the Papal troops, when a French column, under General Pohlus, advanced to their support and turned the tide of battle, and Garibaldi with his followers was forced to retrav, with the loss of 900 killed and 2000 taken prisoners. The Papal troops also lost heavily. Subsequently Garibaldi and his son M motti were captured at Terni, and sent to Vigevano, in Piedmont, and confined in prison there. Garibaldi was that he is a citizen of the United States, and demands his rights and privileges as such under the law of mations. The American Minister left here yesterday for Vigevano, and will make a friendly endeavour to have him released. AMERICA.

New York, New Jersey and Maryland in the State elections just passed, have followed the examples set them by California, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Ohio, and have gone democratic by tremendous majorities.—New York State by 45,000. New Jersey by 13,000, and Maryland by 30,000. The rebuke to the Radicals is fearful. This city alone gave 61,000 majority against them, and the city of Brooklyn 14,500 more. But this is not all; the Democrats in the State of Massachusetts have brought the Radical majority down from 66,000 to 20,000, and the Democrats and anti-prohibitionists have carried the Legislature of that State by an overwhelming majority. It Kanses of sizesacousetts have brought the Radical majority down from 60,000 to 20,000, and the Democrats and anti-prohibitionists have carried the Legislature of that State by an overwhelming majority. In Kansas negro suffrage has been repudiated by 6000 finajority, and woman suffrage by 2000; and in Winconsin and Minnesota negro suffrage has also been repudiated by large majorities, and although the Radicals have elected their state officers in those States, it is by small majorities to what they have had in the past few years, the Democrats making immense gains in their votes. Missouri also had repudiated negro suffrage, but the Radicals elect their candidates by small majorities. It will thus be seen that the people are everywhere becoming disgusted with Radicalism, and that it is rapidly being "played out." Of course President Johnson is exceedingly jubilant over the disconditure of the Radicals, while the Democrats are everywhere rejoicing at the turn sffairs have taken. The question of impeaching the President is now almost certain to fall dead, although such intense and bitter Radicals as Scenator Wade and Representatives Thaddeus Stevens and Benjamin F. Butler still continue to carnestly and boildy advocate it, believing as they declare they debelieve, that he is an obstacle in the way of negro suffrage, which must be removed. They are determined to establish negro suffrage if they can, and they will do it, if there is a possibility of doing it, despite the voice of the people in every Northern State against it.

Mr. Thaddeus Stevens has just written a very long and important letter on the finances of the eventure in the voice of the people in every Northern State against it.

Mr. Thaddeus Stevens has just written a very long and important letter on the finances of the country, in which he denounces without stint the national banking system of the country, and carnestly favours paying the National Debt in green-backs instead of gold. He says—"So far as the financial condition of this Republic is concerned, it is not and never can be in doubt or peril. With the products which we can readily dispose of to supply the demand of every kind, there never can be a time when, with honest dealings, this republic will be unable to pay all her just liabilities. I have not approved and do not now approve of the financial policy pursued by our Government for the last six years. I think we have thrown away our billions, are still throwing away our millions, by mismanagement," He declares that there was no intention on the part of Congress when they created the government loans to commit the Government to the payment of the principal of these loans in coin, and he thinks it a monstrous doctrine and an enormous swindle on the American people, for European capitalists to think such a thing ought to be done. Speaking of the "Five-Twenty Bonds," he says:—"I presume the most of them are held in Frankfort and Londen, for the money lenders there are more sharp scented than those who were cudgelled out of the Temple. At the time they were bought in gold was 231, or rather Freinbachs were at that discount by the arrangement backs at the rate of about two hundred and eighty to the dollar. It as targetes them to have sold at the dollar in gold and so ever since; and the control of the dollar in gold and so ever since; and the control of the Mexican Republic.

A number of coloured military companies in the district of Columbia have of late been quietly organising, and are now quite an effective force, and it has been hinted around that they were intended to assist Congress in turning the President out of his office. In consequence of this, as the President has full power over all the militia in the dustrict, he has given by the companies be suppressed. He has also directed the regular United States forces in and around Washington to be increased, and General Stedman is expected to take command of them on the day that Congress assembles. The President believes that the Radicals are determined not only to impeach him, but to make the attempt to throat him out of the Presidential chair at the very moment that his trial commences, and this last he intends to resist. He is willing to retire peaceably if, after a fair trial, he is condemned, but not until then.

The President has granted a pardon to James A.

trial will certainly commence before the United States District Court in Richmond, Virginia, on the 21st instant.

It will be recollected that during the Surrat trial Mr. Bradley, the senior counsel for the prisoner, had quite a "flare up" with the presiding Judge of the Court—Judge Fisher—who, at the conclusion of the trial, charged him with contempt of the dignity of the Bench, and ordered his name to be struck from the rolls as a practising attorney. Mr. Bradley appealed to the full Bench for a reversal of this decision, and, after much delay, the matter was decided and the sentence of Judge Fisher sustained. It was a hard blow for the old lawyer. He has practised before the Courts for over forty years, and is widely known as an earnest, able, and eloquent advocate.

The President has directed the Attorney-General to issue instructions to the United States authorities, to turn over to the Agent of the Fenians, General O'Neil, all the arms, about forty thousand in number, which were seized by the Government at the time the Penian invasion of Canada was suppressed.

Penian invasion of Ganada was suppressed.

Elections in North and South Carolina are shortly to be held, and it is a foregone conclusion that they will be carried by the negroes, just as Virginia, Louisiana, Alabama, and Georgia already have been—that is by allowing every negro to vote, and preventing the white citizens from doing so. The picture is thus presented of the negroes in the Southern States having full political power at the expense of the white, while in the Northern States negro suffrage is emphatically voted down by the white voters. It is rather a curious matter as it stands, but so it is. The white people of the Southern States may atand this for a time, but it is certain they will not stand it always. If it does not end in a war of races it will be surprising—and if such a war commences, which Heaven forbid the negro will certainly be forced to the wall.

The Indian war is now about at an end, as nearly all the wardity.

The Indian war is now about at an end, as nearly all the warlike tribes have agreed upon terms of peace with our Government, and have consented to leave the Pacific Railroad alone. One or two tribes hold out, but they also it is believed will in a very short time agree to smoke the pipe of peace.

CANADA.

The first session of the first Parliament of the New Dominion of Canada was opened on the 6th November with imposing ceremonics, and on the following day his Excellency Governor General Monck delivered his speech from the throne. He congratulated Parliament that the Confederation of the British North American Provinces was a fixed fact, and he believed that the Confederation would ere long extend its bounds from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. He then requested the members of the Senate and the House of Commons to adopt such measures, in regard to the customs, currency, excise, postal affairs, naturalisation of aliens, defence of the country, and other necessary matters as would redound to the improvement and prosperity of the dominion. He delivered his speech in English and then in French, and was listened to attentively throughout.

MEXICO.

Our latest advices from Mexico atato that Juarez has been elected President of that blood-stained Republic, but that several prominent military chieftains are dissatisfied with the result, and that another revolution may be looked for within less than two months. Santa Anna has been banished from the country for eight years, but the members of the court that tried him have been imprisoned for not sentencing him to death. A commissioner has been sent to Washington to negotiate a losn of twelve millions of dollars. The body of the unfortunate Maximilian is still retained, and there seems no disposition whatever to surrender it up to his relatives.

The Jamaica News Room was known to have posted some curious predictions of an approaching earthquake, by Professor A. M. Delisser, some three weeks before, and there was a general rush to read it, it ron thus:—

"By calculations which I have just completed, there will be some extraordinary astronomical influences at work from the 10th to the 13th November next, and I should not be surprised if on the 12th, or within twenty-fours of it, we should have a violent earthquake or some other rupture of nature, perhaps a hurricane.

THE DAMAGE DONE BY THE EARTHQUAKE.

In the district of St. David's, some miles to the east of Kingston, the sugar works upon Norris Estate, the property of the Hon. W. Payne Georges, were completely destroyed, the huge chimney of the boiling house came thundering down upon the house of Mr. M. Farlane, the overseer, and he rushing out in a fright, without exactly knowing his situation, narrowly escaped with his life. Every building on the estate was more or less injured, some walls fell down and others were cracked. The horses upon the estate were scattered in every direction, having become infuriated during the eurhquake, and rushed wildly about the property just as if it was a prairie on fire.

carrying off the silver-mounted shield of one of them, and quietly chaffing his Majesty as he did so. Not one of the 'loyalists' ventured to follow him. His Majesty then retired from the contest and returned to Debra Tabor, muttering threats of future vengeance against the disloyal mountaineers who had dared to de-fend not only their homesteads and corn fields, but the ve.'y lives of themselves, their wives, and their little ones, against their sovereign, and at the date of Mr. Flad's letter (August 11) he was preparing to march against them with four or five of the little cannon his Europeans have made for him. This, however, is probably only bluster, as generally he never can execute what he threatens. If he comes at all to Magodia, he will probably do so this month; and for his advent I can assure you we are not at all anxious. Arother repulse like that he encountered at Belessa world quite destroy his prestige, which is his chief bufwark at present. In Gahint, the southermost district of Begemmeder, there is a powerful rebel at present, named Syoom Warrenga, who is said to be determined on fighting should his Majesty pass by that route; while, should he resolve on the other—namely, via Waddela and Talanta—he would have to encounter the soldiers of Wagshoom Gobazy in the former, and those of the Gala Queen Mastynt in the latter district, these chieftains having billeted their soldiers on the peasants during the rainy season. Daunt, between this and Gahint, is also occupied by the Gallas. So, after all, thore are difficulties in the way of his coming hither, and we carnestly hope never to see his face again. But still the name of Theodore may assist him, unless the brave peasans of Belessa can give him such another thrashing as may convince every one that it is but a name after all. No messengers have arrived from the const since I has wrote, now six weeks since. This is probably on account of the rivers in Tigré being now full. THE CONVICTION OF THE MANCHESTER FENIANS FOR THE MURDER OF SERGEANT BRETT.

THE five prisoners, Gould, Allen, Larkin, Shore, and Maguire, were found guilty of the murder of sergeant Brett, in an attempt to rescue the two Fenians, Deasy and Kelly. The verdict was returned on the lat November. The Times gives the following report of the subsequent proceedings:—

After nearly two hours' deliberation, the jury returned into court with a verdict of guilty against all the property of the subsequent proceedings.—

turned into court with a veralet of guilty against an time, prisoners.

The Ciera of the Gomes, addressing the prisoners individually, asked them what they had got to say why the Court should not proceed to pass sentence of death upon them according to law.

Allen: I want to speak.

Gould: I am going to reply to that.

Mr. Justice Blackburn said he would hear Allen first.

Gould: I am going to reply to that.

Mr. Justice Blackburn said he would hear Allen first.

The prisoner Allen then said,—My lords and gentlemen, it is not my intention to occupy much of your time in answering the question. Your question is one that can be easily asked, but requires an answer which I am ignorant of. It is a question which a much abler man than me could not answer. Where were the men that stood in the dock?—where were Burke and Emmett and others that stood in the dock in defence of their country? When the question was put to them what was their answer? Their answer was null and void. Now, with your kind permission, my lord, I will review portions of the evidence that has been brought before me.

Mr. Justice Blackburn: That, you know, is too late; probably you don't understand it. The evidence has been commented upon, and the jury have found their verdict, and we have no power or right to alter it. If you have anything to say to show reason why, either upon technical or moral grounds, sentence should not be passed, we will hear it, but the time to review evidence to show the verdict is wrong is too late.

Allen: Can that be done in the morning?

done his best; but I believe it is an old-saying, and a true saying, "What is decreed before a man in his passage through life he has to fulfil it,—either the gallows, or drowning, or a fair death on the bed or on the battle field." So, my lords, I lie at your mercy and the mercy of God; and may God forgive all those that have sworn my life away, as I do from the bottom of my heart!—he concluded emphatically—God forgive them!

The prisoner Gould said the witnexes against him had sworn what was false. He never threw a stone since he was a boy, and he had no pistol in his possession on the day of this alleged outrage. His name was Michael O'Brien. He was born in the county of Cork, and he had the honour to be the fellow parishioner of Peter O'Neal Crawley; who was killed in defending the port at Mitchells-town against the British troops last March, and fell fighting against British tyranny in Ireland. He was a citizen of the United States of Americe. If Charles Francis Adams had done his duty towards him, as he was paid for doing, he would not be in that dock answering the questions. He wrote to Mr. Adams, but Mr. Adams did not come to see if he could find funds to disprove the charge, which he possibly could, if he had taken the trouble of sending or coming to see what he could do. He hoped the American people would notice that part of the business. I reland had a beautiful climate and scenery; but where was there a shadow of liberty or a spark of glad life among the plundered and persecuted inhabitants? He hoped that its imbecile and tyramical rulers would be for ever driven from her soil amid the execrations of the world. The English aristocrats moralisted over despotism in Naples and other countries—

Mr. Justice Blackburn intercupted the prisoner, remarking that it was entirely for his own sake that he did so. What the prisoner was now asking would not prevent the sentence of the law being passed. He advised him to any nothing more of that sort:

Gould: My Lord, I prefer saying it.
Mr. Justice Blackburn: Very well.
Gould proceeded to say that the English aristocrats should look at home and see the misery there. He concluded by saying that he had been improperly identified and that the witness had sworn falsely. He thanked his counsel and attorney.

The prisoner Maguite denied having been there at all. He said this was the third time he had come hone on furlough, that he had sput tun years in her Majesty's service, and had not been long enough in England to know or conspire with any one. He had written to his officer, Captain Jones, of the Princesa Reyal, for a character, and had not been long enough in the had here had never been near the place, and wend not know his way out to Bellvue except he was shown, having never been in that direction in his life. It was a hard thing to be sentenced in the wrong. Nevertheless, he gave his best thanks to those who had conducted his case. It was one of mistaken identity altogether.

Shore said he would not say much, for it came upon him altogether by surprise that a man could be convicted of murdering a man whom he did not know, and had never seen. He did not want to detain their Lordships, but could not help remarking that Mr. Shaw had come to gloat over his victims, after swearing what was altogether false, and that thero were contradictions in the depositions which had not been sworn that a stone had fallen upon his head, which the proper had been to be alighted marked the stone on his head, and if he and the witness went had seen it, hie could fancy which would attract most attention. But let J he evidence of for what it was worth; evidence equally strong had been given against it by presons who were in Liverpola at the time; they out to have been to a certain who

Ireland!"

The other prisoners, in chorus, and with great power, said "God save Ireland!"

Gould said,—I only wish to add that of all the acts in my political career I do not regret any. I do not know one single act that can bring a blush of shame to my face or make me fear to meet my God or leave my follow men. Nothing could give me greater pleasure than to serve in defence of the liberties of my country. If I can do so I am content to die upon the scaffold, I hope, as a soldier, a man and a Christian.

the scaffold, I hope, as a soldier, a man and a Christian.

Mr. Justice Mellor, in passing sentence of death, said that no persons who were present at the trial could doubt the justice of the verdict. He would be deceiving the unhappy men were he to hold out to them any expectation of mercy.

Sentence of death was then passed in the usual form. The prisoners shook hands warmly with their counsel and soliciors, and Larkin, on leaving the dock, cried, "God be with ye, Irishmen and Irishwomen!"

I mered I heard the rumbling of a dray close at hand over the rocky roads.

I was standing on the verandah, and instinctively looked reund the house in a north casterly direction from whence I felt sure the dray was coming. Almost immediately the house began to shake, and the cry was raised—"an earthquake!"

It was one, and well it bore out its name. On it seemed to come, for the rumbling increased, and the earth quaked and shook more violently, then like the hurricane it lulled, then out it burst again—quaking trembling, clerahing, rumbling along—till it died away, as it were in the far distance.

Our first impulse had been to rush to the open but the house being wood, and of light structure, we had remained on the verandah as safet than between sione wals. St. Thomas, lay at our feet. For two minutes and a half we saw houses rock and roll like ships at set, then, a rash, a cloud of dust, and, as the rumbling died away, the shricks and screams of the horror-stricken inhabitants—which before had mingled in the din—rose clear and distinct.

Crowdo of men, women, children for the most part black, or of negro extraction, came rushing along to the hills like so many frantic demons—the men worse than the women—who, in many instances, were mute from terror; but the frenzied prayers for mere, the mingling of the name of the Most High with discordant yells and ories of despair, soundedlike moet awful blasphemy from the lips of the unfortunate weetches. All this, with the shrieks of the mother for her children, and the cries of children for their parents, was the most discordant and heartrending, as all nature seemed just them more loyed; and beautifully calof than ever. Terror having driven the inhabitants from the stores, shops, and warehouses, happily no loss of life occurred on shore from this overwhelming flood. As to what was the loss in the harbour it may never be known; certainly when we left St. Thomas nobody could form an idea, nor could anybody give anything like a list of the casualties. The American war sloop De Soto was bumped on the rocks and could only be kept affoat by pumping. The little screw tender which had been steaming round to the wharf to take off the passengers was swamped, and two of her crew lost.

arry of the outbreak. The continuous steady shocks of from first to when we left—not less than seventy could have been felt; nearly all more severe than any which before had shaken the town.

During the whole of Tuesday there was hardly a sign of life in the town; every shop was closed; the hotels and burs deserted; a few stragglers in the open places, or on the quays, and a few boat loads of negroes leaving to go on board a ship bound for the neighbouring islands.

The news came during the day that Santa Oruge had suffered fearfully from the earthquake wave, the whole town, lying low, was submerged, the shipping destroyed, the United States' sloop-of-war Monaghely, of 9 guns, carried on shore totally disabled, with loss of her big guns overboard. The American steam frigate Susqueannah left St. Thomas for Santa Cruce immediately on receipt of the intelligence.

Before evening all the passengers were collected on board the La Pitat, as she lay in that hot and fetild corner of St. Thomas & Harbour, the place that had proved the grave of so many young English sallors. It was an awful hole, just under that sweltering heap of coal, the water of the harbourly sailt and stagman, of floating the debrie of a hundred wreeks, the hot as heavy with, the stench of, thousands of dead fish, and as every shock—for during the night they were more numerous again—shook the timbers of the old ship, the unearthly wail from the unhappy blacks came across the still dark waters.

Tired out and weary we got what sleep we could no deck, and it was to us a cheerful sound when the preparations for coaling broke the stillniess of the night. On the men toiled, and if they paused in their labours as the earth they trod, trembled in its giant convulsions, they would recommence with fresh vigour, as if determined to escape as soon as possible from the lill fated spot.

There are several reasons why women who rely on their beauty remain amparried at the least; but the reason that their beauty, gives them no advantage is certainly not onle. The first reason perhaps is that beauties are inclined to be fastidious and capricious. They have no holion of following the advice of Mrs. Hannah. More, and being contented with the first good sensible. Christian doyer who falls in their way; and they run, in consequence, no slight, risk of overstaying their market. They [go in for a more splendid sort of matimonial sideose, and think they can afford to play the more thring grane. Plain girls are providentially preserved from these; temptations. At the close of a well-spectific they can consectentiously look. Back on a carer in which no reasonable opportunity was neglected, and say that they have not brokes. I many hearts, or been sliftly and distractingly particular. And there is the further xonsideration to be remembered in the case-of plain girls, that fortunit and rank are are nearly as valitable articles as beauty, and lead to a fair number of matrimonial alliances. The system of Providence is full of kindly compensations, and, it is a proof of the universal bene-wolence we see about us that so many heircesses should be plain. Plain girls may rationally hope to secure, and who can say that they ought not to be cheerful and happy in their lot? For a character of this undentable sobriety, there is mided a positive savantage in a plain girl as a "wife." It should never be forgotten that the man who matries a plain girl never a need be jealous. Ho is in the Areadian and fortunate cundition of a lover who has no rivals. A sensible unambitious nature will recognise in this a solid benefit. Plain girls raively turn into frisky matrons; and this fact renders them peculiarly adapted to be the wives of dull and steady mediocrity.

Lest it should be supposed that the above calculation of what plain girls may do leaves some of their power and success, still unbecounted for, it is quite right and proper to add that the story of plain girls, if it were carefully written, would contain many instances, not merely of moderate good fortime, but of splendid and exceptional triumph. Like prima domas; operadancers, and lovely milliners, plain girls have beek known to make extraordinary faits, and to awaken illustrious passions. Somebody ought to take up the subject in a book, and tell us flow they did it. This is the age of golden treaturies. We have golden treasuries of English keroes, of stocessful merchante, and to almost every sort of character and celebrity than can be conceived. What is wanted is a golden treasury containing the harbative of the most successful plain girls.
